Community of Practice (CoP)

- An informal monthly meeting to discuss a range of issues faced by child health services researchers. Aims include:
 - Building community of health services researchers dedicated to learning, sharing, and supporting topics related to the health of children and their families
 - Providing an opportunity to network in a relaxed, shared space outside of ARM
 - Offering a monthly opportunity for learning and problem solving with knowledgeable, supportive, and enthusiastic colleagues
 - Providing a platform to present and discuss emerging research questions, topics, challenges, and innovative methodologies
- Previous topics: translating research to policy; forming a parental advisory board; housing instability and child health; and many others!
